LATEST FROM THE DISPUTED STATES,

The Next House of Representatives. NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The Graphic's special from Washington says officers of the House of Representatives now in the city have been figuring on Congressional returns, and they report that according to returns received up to-day one hundred and forty-three Republicans and one hundred and forty-four Democrats are elected, if in the districts in New Hampshire yet to elect, two Republicans and one Democrat are elected. Four districts are now in doubt, one in Louisiana, one in Missouri, and two in South Carolina. Essouri, and two in South Carolina, Estimating that these doubtful districts are divided equally between the two parties, the House stands one hundred and forty-seven Democrats to one hundred and forty-six Republicans. The Republican delegation in Talla bassee have telegraphed to Hon. Zach. Chandler, at Washington, that the reason they have declined to publish figures of the Electoral vote in Florida is that official returns from only thirty-two counties out of thirty-nine have been received, and they are unwilling to make public their understanding of the figures lest the Democratic counties still behind be sufficiently changed to alter

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 21.—The Supreme Court met yesterday, and after hearing arguments from counsel on each side, it was ordered that the State Board of Canvassers make a report at once of the canvass as far as they had gone and the Court would decide on the merits of the decision. The Court adjourned, awaiting such returns. COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 21 .- The Su-

Judge Spofford urged the adoption of the motion in a short speech, of which the following aresextracts. Addressing the President of the Board, he said:

"You, Mr. President, remarked the other day that your functions were partly ministerial and partly Judicial. The ministerial duties are few and simple. They consist only in the addition and ministerial duties are few and simple. They consist only in the addition and tabulation of votes. There is no call for privacy in applying the rules of arithmetic in periorming all the rest of your duties. In your judicial duties publicity is imperatively demanded. It is essential at every stage of the investigation, in order to insure a just argument. in order to insure a just argument.
Adopt this order, so that every whisper in your commer may be heard to the uttermost extremity of the Union. Thus, and thus only, in my humble judgment, will it be possible for you to reassure a perturbed and anxious country, and to establish through all generations the righteousness or your interlocutory rulrighteousness of your intersecutory ful-ings and final award."

Gov. Wells overruled the motion. The Board also overruled the protest made by the Democratic Committee on Re-turns on Saturday, against the constitu-tionality of the Board, and its legal authority to count the Electoral vote. The election to fill the vacancy in the Board was postponed, and the recom-The election to Bit the vacancy in the Board was postponed, and the recommendation submitted by the Democratic Committee laid over. Supreme Court whether Wade Hampton shall take the Governor's seat in South Carolina, by virtue of the gross oppression in Edgefield, or whether Mr. Chamberlain shall keep that seat by virtue of a large majority of honest votes. It is curious to note, too, that this decision rests with Judge Moses, who is said to have been rendered hostille to Goy Chamberlain by the action of who is said to have been rendered hostile to Gov. Chamberlain by the action of the latter in keeping the Judge's son—the "Scoundrel Governor"—off the bench of the Supreme Court. When the Governor did this the Democrats were greatly pleased, but they will not hesitate to accept any advantage they can gain from the resentment aroused by an act of efficial virtue. Such is the "chivalry" of the South Carolina gentleman of the modern kind. In its essence it is meaner than the meanness of the most sordid tradesmen. Happily, is not sustained by the facts.

[From the World of yesterday.]

It is to be observed that the Republican Committee does not pretend to deny or gainsay that the Tilden Electors have dred and forty-six Republicans. Among the Democrats elected is Alexander H. Stephens, who is not expected to be able to take his seat. This will leave the House a tie in his absence.

Florida.

New York, Nov. 21.—A Herald special from Tallahassee says the Democrats yesterday applied to Judge White, of the Circuit Court, for an injunction restraining Governor Stearns from canvassing the returns to the exclusion of the Board of Canvassers, and also for a mandamus compelling the Board of Canvassers to begin counting the votes at once. Judge White is a Republican, but it is understood he has expressed the some 8,000 majority of the ballots acthe negroes.

BRIGNOLI. An Interview with the Great Tenor. The Globe, Democrat, in a long inter-riew with the great Italian tenor, who is now in this city, has the following: In a quiet chat with a few friends of Max Strakosch's room at the Southern Hotel, a few days since, the famous tenor told some very interesting anecdotes of his early career. When he first arrived in New York Verdi was all "the rage." Every one wanted him to sing Manrico, but he would not entertain the idea—his physique was so weak that he thought he never would be able to grap-ple with the music that had ruined so many voices and constitutions. "When I was in London," said he, "little Adelina Patti came to me and called me

When I first went to Europe I was the image of him. When I reached London poor Guiglini was sick in a hos-pital, where I went to see him. I re-sembled him so much that I was frequently stopped on the street by his friends, who mistook me for him. He had then been singing for several seasons with Titiens at Her Majesty's Opera, and Mapleson, the Manager, en-gaged me to fill his place for the remain-der of the season. I shall never forget when I went on the stage there the first time. That great artists, Teresa Titiens, was already on, and I was personally a stranger to her. When she first saw me she started, and when she heard my voice she fairly broke down and burst into tears. I reminded her so washed the tears who had so deserved.

"After my return with Parepa, I sang with her for some time, and then with Christine Nilsson—hor first visit here. Christing Ansson—and first visit he.e. I shall probably singhere again with her next season. When I left her in Newcastle, England, in January last, she was very anxious that I should remain and return with her, but I wanted to get I feel America; any home?"

"Do you think you have done better here than you would have done in Europe?"

"No; I should have made more money

"No; I should have made more money in Europe. I was what you call a d-fool to come here when I did. At that time the country did not understand musical art—were not educated up to appreciating it. An operatic singer with a great European reputation but with a great European reputation, but who had become passe, would come here and draw crowds and make dollars; not and draw crowds and make dollars; not on their merits, but on their name. I came here a young man and made my name, and to-day I am a few years older than Mario was when I came here nearly twenty-two years ago."

"Well, don't you think that American audiences are as critical and as appreciative of true art as Europeans?"

"Yes. Now, they have learned, they audiences are as critical and as appreciative of true art as Europeans?'

"Yes. Mow, they have learned, they have grown; I would rather sing to an American audience than any in the world. In my recent visit to Europe, I told some of the managers, The American people would not listen to your opera; they would hist you off the stage If you presented it in the way you are doing it.' This is going to be the great country for art, bicause it will not depend, as in the Old World, on the cuiture of the few, and the patronage of the higher classes, fix they are cailed. The whole people are becoming cultured; they are buginning to know what is good, and you can not fool them as they were fooled years ago, with second-fate artists and worn-out celebrities. American audiences are now the most critical, and the time is ripe for grand opera, with the greatest artists, to be successful in this country."

"It you have these opinions, how do you eccount for Alban's failure here?"

in art."

"Your last trip to Europe was very successful, was it not?"

"Yes. I sang in Paris, London, and in the San Carlo in my own Naples. I was treated with the same kindness everywhere, and every inducement offered me to stay. There is one fine trait in the patrons of opera in Europe—they never lorget old friends. If Sims Reeves' name is advertised for a concert to-day demands concerning Turkish reforms.

FOREIGN NOTES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—St. Petersburg advices deny the truth of the report of a report criticisms are the bast and the werst. They are generally very good or clear very bad, showing the critic does not understand what he is writing about. Few artists object to severe criticism—unless it is abusive—if it shows a knowledge of the subject criticised. It is the foolish things said that are anneying. Now, a great many newspapers say I am good considering my age, but I am not old—I am only in my forty—seventh year. One paper said I had false teeth. Are these false?" excitedly.

Sig. Brignoli here showed his teeth, and they certainly were a spleadid set of molars, but they had not been made by a dentist.

In reply to the inquiry if he intended to return again to Europe, Sig. Brignost thought not. He imagines that are season, or at least the season after, wa shall have the finest Italian Opera Company that has yet been in the country, as the people are ready for it and willing to pay for it, because they are beginning to be able to appreciate it. Brignost twoice retains its marvellous beauty, and his method is much improved. This has been fully shown by his admirtable singing during the past week. He is still at an age when Mario held his own against all comers, and there is no reason to suppose but that in the immediate fature of Italian opera in this country he will play a prominent part.
